Somerville business life kept up its customary record this year and made few business changes of any nature. The business houses about the square remain unchanged with only the few clerks noted elsewhere changing places. Few towns that have fewer business changes than does this one from year to year.

The County Board of Education met in the office of the County Superintendent on any of this week in regular quarterly session and attended to a lot of miscellaneous business. It was found out then that every high school in the county was supplied with teachers except a small number of schools that have fallen below the number of pupils required by law as the minimum to keep the school going. This is the first time since war conditions deprived schools of so many teachers that all schools are filled and the teachers yet to be had in the county if they are needed.

Several merchants about the square tell us that their Christmas trade for the last week of the trade season was far better than they had provided us to that week any better than they expected. The past fall has been one of small purchases in lines through the country. All the high ups in the financial world say now that conditions will improve and business is going to pick right up.

R. N. Crane who has been manager the past year of the West-Alexander farm east of town has arranged for the operation of a produce business in Chattanooga and is leaving for that place, with his family. The removal of Mr. Crane from the community is a distinctive loss. He and his family are splendid people, cultured and useful and we wish he could have found it to his advantage to remain here. He will be succeeded in the management of the farm by a gentleman from Indiana whose name we have not been able to get.

Beginning next week The Falcon will present weekly notes on gardening as has been its custom for several years past. Frequent favorable comments have been made to us on the publication of these notes and it will be the aim of The Falcon to make them profitable and worth while during the coming year. Plans are already being made by us to have a supply of frost proof cabbage plants, and the usual early hot bed plants, potato plants, etc. as the season comes on. The first shipment of frost proof cabbage plants which we are buying from a dealer already found by us to be thoroughly reliable will be here the last of February, weather permitting, and other shipments will follow as the need of our customers is shown. We will grow more plants than ever before.

We note with interest the announcement of the marriage on December 28 of Mr. Wilburn Bernard Franklin Jr. to Miss Iva McMullen Boyd of Knoxville. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Boyd, Knoxville. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Franklin of Lagrange, and enjoys a wide circle of friends in the county. They will make their home at Lagrange.

Aubrey Harvey on January 1 gave up his position as a salesman for Rhea Drug Company after being connected with the firm almost since it was first formed several years ago. He has many friends and customers who will regret that he is no longer there. His place has been filled for the coming year by W. A. Rhea Jr., who was with the firm prior to the war.

Club Work Gives Boys and Girls Valuable Training in Many Ways

Once a year all the club boys and girls in each county come together to exhibit their products and to have a final test in order to determine the winners in the various clubs. These county contests are held in the fall and early winter after all phases of the club work are completed and they stimulate interest and keen rivalry that is highly beneficial.

Every club member submits to the county agents reports of their work showing the crop yields, growth of animals value at market prices etc. This gives them splendid training in farm accounting.

Most club members exhibited their livestock and products at the fair during the fall after which they made complete reports of their work to the county agents. These reports show the results of the boys and girls work from each county during the year.

When all the results of the boys and girls work will have been tabulated the report for the State will be sent to the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington. It is believed that the boys and girls in Tennessee will make excellent showings when compared with club members from other states according to G. L. Herrington, Club Specialist.

From this it can be seen that boys and girls are now a recognized factor in the agricultural industry of this country. The contest and the exhibits as described above give the boys and girls valuable training both in preparing products and livestock for show and in keeping accounts and making reports. It is largely a business training a thing many farmers in Tennessee lack. Such training of the boys and girls of today will mean better farmers tomorrow.
